

B52s LAUNCH HEAVIEST ATTACKS

... Stratofortresses Pound Troops And Supply Dumps

Saigon (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers launched their heaviest attacks of the war against North Vietnam on Thursday and Friday, pounding enemy troops and supply dumps just above the demilitarized zone.

The record number of bombing raids by the giant Stratofortresses in a 24-hour period followed the close of another round of secret Paris peace talks, but U.S. sources maintained the stepped-up attacks had no political significance.

Radio Hanoi again charged the United States with prolonging the negotiations and being "stubborn and bellicose."

Nearly 50 Stratofortresses, in 16 separate missions, struck targets in an area between 22 miles and 43 miles southeast of Dong Hoi, north of the eastern end of the demilitarized zone. Two other missions hit the DMZ.

Previous Record

The previous record for B52 missions against North Vietnam was 15 Nov. 22, the U.S. Command reported.

All bombing raids over the North have been below the 20th parallel since Oct. 23 when the United States limited the target area because of renewed secret peace talks. This places the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi and its major port, Haiphong, off limits to bombers.

The eight-engine B52s have been concentrating their attacks in an area where U.S. military sources have reported heavy enemy troops and truck concentrations preparing to move toward battlefronts in South Vietnam.

The bombing attacks against these reinforcements intensified Dec. 5 and have been carried out almost daily since. More than 80 missions and 7,000 tons of bombs have pounded the area.

Earlier this week, military sources disclosed that 8,000 fresh enemy troops and nearly 100 tanks had reached North Vietnamese divisions in northernmost Quang Tri Province since the beginning of the month.

The two raids in the DMZ were in the area of the Mu Gia pass, linking North Vietnam with Laos and the Ho Chi Minh Trail. Military sources have reported up to 10,000 new enemy troops and 90 tanks entering the 700 miles of interconnecting trails that make up the trail, most heading south.

In South Vietnam, B52 bombers flew 14 missions against suspected enemy troop positions during the 24-hour reoperting period from noon Thursday to noon Friday. The U.S. Command said seven were in Quang Tri Province, where government troops are battling enemy forces.

American fighter-bombers flew 324 missions in South Vietnam Thursday, the most in two months. The U.S. Command said more than half were in northernmost Military Region I.

In North Vietnam, fighter-bombers made 50 tactical strikes Thursday but the U.S. Command said there was "no significant bomb damage assessment" to report.

44 Said

Government paratroops supported by air and artillery strikes battled North Vietnamese forces south of Quang Tri, killing 44 of the enemy, the Saigon command said. Government casualties were given as one dead and two wounded.

In the central highlands, near the Cambodian border, South Vietnamese infantry and armor reported killing 16 North Vietnamese two miles north of Due Co.

Closer to Saigon, North Vietnamese gunners rocketed the Bien Hoa Air Base, 15 miles north of the capital, also hitting an adjoining regional military headquarters and two outlying hamlets.

Six civilians were killed and two wounded in the predawn attack. The Saigon command reported. The base's power plant was damaged, temporarily cutting off electricity.

After the attack, an infantry battalion discovered four rocket launching sites four miles from the base and confiscated 20 rockets.

Holiday Spirit More Than Gift-Giving

By MILAN WALL

Star Staff Writer

The holiday spirit of giving will mean much more than the giving of gifts this weekend at College View Academy in Lincoln.

More than 40 of the high school youngsters have decided to give some of their time and energy, as well as traditional gifts, to a party for a group of other youths from the Nebraska Center for Children and Youth.

"We don't want people who don't show they care," said Raye Lynn Jacobs, one of the party's organizers. "We want people who can really give of their time and their concern."

"Very personal involvement" was described as the key to the effort by another of the youthful leaders.

"The social activities of the school lack attendance," said Tom Goyme. "We need something better than just being entertained all the time."

Ways To Serve Others

Tom and Raye Lynn, both 16-year-old College View Academy students, are also members of a youth coordinating committee formed this fall at College View Seventh-day Adventist Church to help young people find ways to serve others in the Lincoln community.

A survey at the school which attempted to elicit student ideas for projects resulted in "a lot of votes for a Christmas party for underprivileged kids," said Raye Lynn.

Since the academy has been involved in volunteer work at the Nebraska Center (Whitehall) in the past, the youths turned there again and planned a party for some of the older youngsters the high schoolers thought might not get as much attention as the little ones.

The academy students have planned the party for Sunday, when the Nebraska Center's youngsters will be treated to an evening of games, films, refreshments, Christmas tree decorations and a visit from Santa Claus himself.

Two high school volunteers will be hosts to each of 23 of the Nebraska Center youngsters, who will also receive gifts purchased by the College View Academy students.

Both Raye Lynn and Tom said they hope the party will be the beginning of regular functions involving youngsters from the two institutions.

Want To Be Involved

Raye Lynn said the youth coordinating committee was formed because, "We wanted people to realize we're here and ... that we do want to be involved."

Both Tom and Raye Lynn said they sense a trend away from the mostly social activities that characterized student projects in recent years.

Welfare Verification Is Ordered

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Exon administration has ordered county welfare officials to verify the eligibility of all welfare recipients and applicants. State Welfare Director Lawrence Graham said Friday.

That order, in effect, wipes out a system of non-verification mandated by the federal government in 1969.

Graham's directive follows on the heels of a U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) report indicating that Nebraska has the highest percentage of ineligible and overpaid welfare recipients in the nation.

HEW has threatened to withhold nearly $2 million in federal welfare funds from the state next year if the errors are not corrected. Federal figures place the error rate at 9.8%, compared to an 8.3% national average.

"It is impossible not to have errors without verification," Graham told a news conference Friday.

Thus, he suggested, it was the federal government itself which created the system which helps produce the errors.

But Graham also took exception to the federal figures.

They penalize Nebraska for making an exceptional effort to identify errors and correct any abuses, he said. And that, he insisted, is "just not fair."

When he became welfare director, Graham said Gov. J. James Exon's "first mandate (to me) was to clean up any errors I could find in welfare."

Whereas there were only three persons in the error-checking program of "quality control" when he assumed his duties, Graham said, there are now 14 people "really investigating" cases.

"Although our error rate may look high, at least it's a truthful one, and we're taking corrective action."

The verification procedure will provide for a check of the income declarations of all recipients of aid to dependent children (ADC) and the resource declarations of all recipients of aid to the aged, blind or disabled.

ADC cases will be verified every three months, and the aged, blind and disabled will be checked once a year. All new applications will be fully verified.

"There should be a savings, but not a very large savings" as a result of the new policy, Graham said. But there will be "very little effect" on the number of people on welfare, he predicted.

There are now almost 42,000 persons on the ADC rolls, and 15,530 receiving aid to the aged, blind or disabled.

Missing Link In 'Chain' Is Snapped In Place

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

The last "missing link" remaining in the Interstate-80 "chain" between Denver and the East Coast was snapped into place here Friday afternoon, and it didn't take motorists long to catch on.

Within minutes after officials symbolically snapped together two lengths of chain in a dedication ceremony in the middle of the new I-80 Missouri River bridge, officially linking Iowa and Nebraska, a steady flow of traffic was moving across the new $8.5 million, 2,462-foot span.

Although interstate travelers could already cross the river via the I-480 bridge with a slight detour through downtown Omaha, the new Spring St. Bridge will serve as the main I-80 link, intersecting I-29 a mile east in Iowa and continuing northeast along the recently completed I-80 diagonal cutoff to Neola, Ia.

Chilly winds whipping across the bridge kept the opening ceremony brief. Nebraska State Highway Commission Chairman Thane Davis' prepared speech was shortened substantially by a rude gust which caught his papers and sent them scattering.

Gov. J. James Exon deferred to the weather, discarding his prepared speech in favor of briefer impromptu comments. Following remarks by Iowa State Highway Commission Chairman William O. Gray, representing Iowa Governor Robert D. Ray, the chains were linked together. Exon and Omaha Mayor Eugene Leahy pulled from one side, Gray and Council Bluffs Mayor Joseph B. Katelman pulled from the other and the two were snapped together.

Begun in March, 1970, construction of the new bridge proceeded without delay. Cost estimates, however, rose from $3 million at that time to a final total of $8.76 million, with Nebraska supplying 58.5 per cent of the state funds.

U.S.-Chile Talks Set

Washington — High-level talks between the United States and Chile were scheduled to begin Wednesday to seek solutions to the increasing problems between the two countries. Foremost on the agenda, according to American and Chilean officials, will be the question of Chilean nationalization of American property, the Chilean debt to the United States and the Washington's blockage of international funding credits to Santiago.

Speedup Of Gas Into Midwest Is Urged

Washington (AP) — The Office of Emergency Preparedness called on propane producers and pipeline companies Friday to speed fuel supplies into the Midwestern states now urgently in need of gas to dry crops.

OEP Director G. A. Lincoln estimated that 1.8 million barrels of propane gas will be needed to dry remaining crops in areas where the shortage of natural gas has forced heavy use of propane as a substitute.

Up to 44% of the 1.8 million barrels is needed in Indiana and 33% in Ohio, Lincoln said. The rest is needed mainly in Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska.

Propane supplies are available elsewhere, but the lack of available rail tank cars has restricted the movement of the gas from the Gulf Coast and other locations into the deficit areas.

Aggravated By Wet

The crop situation has been aggravated by the fall wet weather which delayed the harvest and increased the moisture content of corn and soybeans in the fields.

These crops, when not field-dried, usually are dried with natural gas.

The Federal Power Commission survey of natural gas pipelines into the Midwest revealed that nearly all have suspended service to customers whose contracts permit the interruption of deliveries, and some are being forced to curtail the supply going to large consumers who hold firm purchase contracts.

Ex-Reporter Chosen Ambassador To U.N.

Washington — John Scali, former diplomatic reporter for the Associated Press and the American Broadcasting Co., will be named by President Nixon to be the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, authoritative sources reported Friday.

Scali, now a consultant to the President in the foreign policy field, is expected to be named soon to replace George Bush, chairman-designate of the Republican National Committee.

Sources pointed out that Scali would have the advantage, as the permanent U.S. representative at the U.N., of having traveled with Nixon to China, the Soviet Union and many other countries around the world during his service on the White House staff.

He will be the first person of Italian descent to serve as U.S. Ambassador to the U.N. The post carries full Cabinet stature.

Scali was ABC correspondent at the State Department during the Cuban missile crisis in 1962. A Soviet embassy official approached him at a luncheon, and Scali then served as an intermediary between the Russians and the White House in helping to pave the way for the understanding that resolved that crisis without war.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler also announced that those leaving the

Staley Wins By Less Than 3 To 2

Kansas City (AP) — Oren Lee Staley, beating back the challenge of dissidents who sought to depose him, was re-elected by a margin of slightly less than a 3-2 Friday to an 18th year as president of the National Farmers Organization.

Rhea Hackler of Fair Grove, Mo., election committee chairman, disclosed the vote of the organization's annual convention as 2,624 for Staley and 1,872 for Bill Struckmeyer of Arbuckle, Calif., the only other nominee.

Staley, 49, a husky, Rea, Mo., farmer, has been president of the agricultural bargaining organization since its formation.

His ouster had been sought by the "72 Convention Committee," which had accused Staley of administrative ineptness and slow response to what it saw as problems within the NFO.

The results were not revealed until more than two hours after the ballots were counted.

Struckmeyer emerged as the dissidents' choice to challenge Staley after the convention would Thursday night the ouster of six directors by the NFO's national board.

CTA Simplifies Proof Of Age For Low Fares

Chicago — Senior citizens no longer have to show "proof of age" documents in order to receive reduced fare permits from the Chicago Transit Authority.

Those who do not have such documentation may now sign a "certification of age" at any of the city and CTA's 38 registration centers to simplify the process of riding for 20 cents instead of 45 cents on the city's buses, subways and elevated trains. CTA Chairman Michael Chertoff said.

The action comes after Mike Ryko showed in his column in the Chicago Daily News that the CTA would not accept Medicare, Social Security cards or other documents as sufficient evidence of age.

Pay Hike Is Ordered For Federal Workers

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon Friday ordered substantial pay boosts next month for about 3.6 million federal workers and military personnel.

The across-the-board increases of 5.14% for 1,316,000 white collar government employees and 6.68% for all 2.4 million members of the armed forces had been scheduled to take effect last October, but Nixon postponed them on grounds that they would conflict with his administration's anti-inflation policy.

The pay hikes, carrying an estimated price tag of $2 billion, were based on recommendations by Budget Director Caspar Weinberger and the chairman of the Civil Service Commission and intended to bring government pay more in line with that in private industry.

Nixon rejected their recommendation for an additional 0.76% raise as compensation for the three-month delay, claiming that would be "neither fair nor justifiable."

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, the administration's chief economic spokesman, announced last Monday that salaries of government workers at the "executive level" — those making more than $36,000 a year, including

Industrial Production Rises 1.1%

Washington (AP) — A robust 1.1% rise of industrial production in November was announced by the Federal Reserve board Friday, following a 1% increase in October.

The expansion, spread widely among consumer and industrial plants to 118.5% of the 1967 level. This was 10.3% above a year earlier.

The gains substantiated administration forecasts of strongly rising economic activity through the year-end.

The board reported it had revised the October index upward by 0.4% and the September index, which already had been revised upward from the preliminary estimate, by another 0.3%.

Pay Hike Is Ordered For Federal Workers

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon Friday ordered substantial pay boosts next month for about 3.6 million federal workers and military personnel.

The across-the-board increases of 5.14% for 1,316,000 white collar government employees and 6.68% for all 2.4 million members of the armed forces had been scheduled to take effect last October, but Nixon postponed them on grounds that they would conflict with his administration's anti-inflation policy.

The pay hikes, carrying an estimated price tag of $2 billion, were based on recommendations by Budget Director Caspar Weinberger and the chairman of the Civil Service Commission and intended to bring government pay more in line with that in private industry.

Nixon rejected their recommendation for an additional 0.76% raise as compensation for the three-month delay, claiming that would be "neither fair nor justifiable."

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, the administration's chief economic spokesman, announced last Monday that salaries of government workers at the "executive level" — those making more than $36,000 a year, including

Industrial Production Rises 1.1%

Washington (AP) — A robust 1.1% rise of industrial production in November was announced by the Federal Reserve board Friday, following a 1% increase in October.

The expansion, spread widely among consumer and industrial plants to 118.5% of the 1967 level. This was 10.3% above a year earlier.

The gains substantiated administration forecasts of strongly rising economic activity through the year-end.

The board reported it had revised the October index upward by 0.4% and the September index, which already had been revised upward from the preliminary estimate, by another 0.3%.

Reformists Winning

Washington — Reformist rank-and-file rebels in the United Mine Workers Union, the ideological heirs of Joseph A. Yablonski, the murdered insurgent leader, won a decisive election victory in the long struggle to oust W. A. (Tony) Boyle, the union's president.

Arnold R. Miller, a 49-year-old disabled coal miner, the opposition's candidate, claimed victory over Boyle "by a comfortable margin."

Miller Builds Up Big Lead

Washington (AP) — Reform candidate Arnold Miller appeared to have built up an insurmountable lead Friday in his bid to oust United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle.

A victory by Miller, 49, a retired West Virginia coal miner, and his Miners for Democracy slate would sweep the 70-year-old Boyle out of a decade of control over the 200,000-member union.

Implied Consent Law Change Upheld

REFUSING TEST RULED SEPARATE OFFENSE

By The Associated Press
The Nebraska Supreme Court Friday upheld the constitutionality of Nebraska's Implied Consent Law which makes refusal to submit to a chemical test a crime separate from drunken driving.

The high court has previously upheld the implied consent law, but specifically approved in Friday's 6-1 decision a 1971 change in the law which made refusal to take the tests a separate offense.

Under the law, any driver can be stopped by law enforcement officers and be given a blood urine, or breath test for drunken driving. The law provides a driver tacitly gives his permission for such tests when he obtains a driver license.

The court's ruling Friday came as the Gage County District Court conviction of Donald L. Manley for drunken driving and refusing to submit to a test was affirmed.

Writing for the majority, Judge Harry Spencer noted that previous to 1971 refusal to take the test had only meant the license could be suspended, and said, "we do not agree" with contentions by Manley's attorneys that the law is invalid. "The Implied Consent Law as amended in 1971, is constitutional," said Spencer.

In dissent, Judge Hale McCown attacked the "obvious legislative confusion" in the 1971 law and another law in 1972 which repealed some sections of the statute. "It is extremely important that drunken drivers be taken off the highways. It is equally important that the removal be accomplished validly and justly," McCown said.

Spencer held that "the withdrawal of blood and the use of analysis in evidence does not involve compulsion within the Fifth Amendment" and said the law does not violate Fifth Amendment guarantees against self-incrimination.

"The Fifth Amendment privilege protects an accused from being compelled to testify against himself only as to evidence of a testimonial or communicative nature," said Spencer.

"Not Vague"

Disagreeing with Manley's attorneys, Spencer held that the 1971 amended law is not vague and unclear.

McCown said the majority ruling "places the stamp of judicial approval upon an involved and confused statutory structure" and noted that under the current statute, a person could be convicted for three crimes — drunken driving, refusal to take a test before arrest, and refusal to take a test after arrest.

He filed a section of a 1969 school art curriculum in agreeing with the Wayne County District Court in a case involving No. 80 in Wayne County. The section in question provides that no class district which contracts for instruction for all pupils after June 1, 1970 shall merge with another class district. District 30 had contracted with the Laurel School District after the applicable date and this could not merge with Class 1 districts Nos. 75 and 76 the high court said in an opinion by Chief Justice Paul White. White disagreed with contentions that the section in question was only amendatory to existing statutes and thus should be unconstitutional. The act clearly sets out mergers of Class 1 districts under certain conditions said White.

Reversed a Dixon County District Court decision granting Midstate Acceptance Co. A judgment for $12,380 on a contract on which there was a default. The high court let stand the judgment for Midstate but ordered further proceedings on the amount of payment which would be credited to the Great Plains Acceptance Co.

Agreed with a Lancaster County District Court ruling directing specific performance of an agreement to sell real estate to A. J. and Loretta Harre by Harold and Alice White.

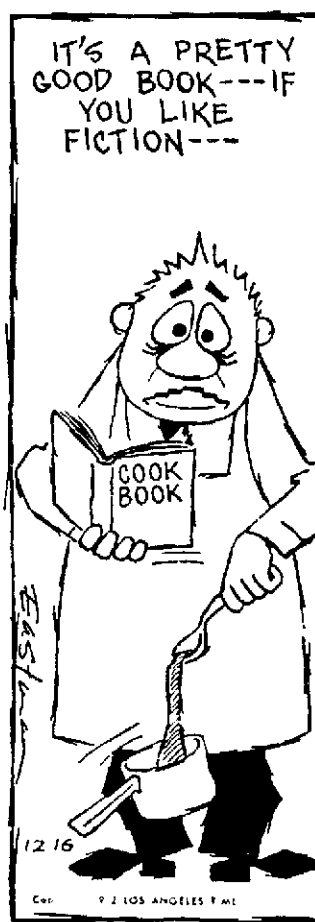

Affirmed a Scotts Bluff County District Court decision to grant a suit by Scotts Bluff County over a $4,322 property tax refund granted by the county board for the Ke in County Land Co. The Supreme Court agreed that the refund was due because of an overpayment resulting from clerical error.

Overturned a Sarpy County District Court decision in a replevin suit brought by James and Virginia Kaplan against the county and ordered the lower court to grant an injunction on the basis of a person's land in question from the county's use of the land.

Reversed a Douglas County District Court decision against John Gubalski in a suit to set aside the loss of a youth fell against a chain link fence.

Rescued Dog Shows No Appreciation

By ROBERT PETERSON
Question: "You praised dogs in a recent column as being 'loving and appreciative'." But I say bunk. I'm 66 and last winter was walking near a lake and saw a huge black Labrador who had broken through the ice. Each time he tried to claw his way out the ice crumbled. He was moaning so I crawled out toward him on my belly lasso in hand, and nearly drowned myself by the time I got a loop over his head and dragged him ashore. He was so weak he couldn't walk so I dragged him home, fed him and comforted him. Next morning he was okay, so I opened the door and he disappeared. He probably returned home bragging that nothing had happened. Wish I could report he followed me around in dumb adoration from then on. But next time I saw him he was callously watering the shrubs in my backyard and hasn't given me a friendly glance since. What do you say to this?"

Answer: "It's probably true that animals lack the understanding necessary to show gratitude and appreciation. Years ago I recall releasing a neighbor's dog. I found snared in someone's con trap. Instead of showing gratitude he thereafter stayed as far away from me as possible, probably figuring I had set the trap in the first place. In the story Androcles and the Lion, the young man's act of kindness in removing a thorn from the lion's paw gained him a lifelong lionine friend. But such gratitude probably happens only in fiction."

IN PERSPECTIVE

By Marquis Childs
(Note: Today's column is by national news writer Marquis Childs. Mr. Dobler's column will be resumed shortly.)

WASHINGTON — With the dust kicked up by the reshuffle slowly settling, the Nixon landscape is curiously unchanged. It is the same, only more so.

The admonition of former Attorney General John N. Mitchell early in the Nixon presidency, "Watch what we do and not what we say," has a special force. The intention, as solemnly proclaimed, was to spread responsibility in the exercise of power. The end result is very likely to be a greater concentration of decision-making authority in the palace guard in the White House.

First-rate men have been assigned to posts where the learning process is long and difficult. Elliot L. Richardson is a prime example. He goes from the vast domain of Health, Education and Welfare to the infinitely greater complexities of the Defense Department.

The military team in the Pentagon with whom President Nixon has long had a close relationship remains intact, with one important addition. General Alexander M. Haig, Jr., jumped over 228 generals who outranked him — 46 lieutenant generals and 182 more senior major generals — to be named vice-chief of staff of the Army. This says a lot about the stockpile of generals out of the Vietnam war. As Henry H. Kissinger's able right hand, Haig has had a close relationship with the President and he can be expected to continue in that relationship.

Whatever else one might say about Melvin Laird, he went to the Pentagon with a broad background of knowledge about military spending through his position on the House appropriations subcommittee on defense expenditures. Richardson is the new boy in a very tough school and it will take all his proven capacities to gain mastery over the hierarchy of powerful men who have devoted much time and ingenuity to circumventing the civilians — in theory, their superiors.

Inspired reports have it that Richardson will be the front man, spending a good bit of his time testifying before Congress while the old boys run the school as before.

The Department of Commerce is a conspicuous example of how controls from the power center are likely to be tightened rather than dispersed. In the past more often than not an honorific reward for deserving party faithful, it was given new life by Peter G. Peterson. Coming from the White House and the Council on International Economic Policy, he carried through highly successful negotiations with the Soviet Union.

Rather unceremoniously pushed aside, he is being replaced by a newcomer, Frederick B. Dent, a South Carolina textile manufacturer with the proper hallmarks of St. Paul's School, Yale and rewards in the family business. Dent led the successful fight for quotas on textile imports. While Japan fought the quota limitations, the Japanese economy was strong enough to absorb the loss.

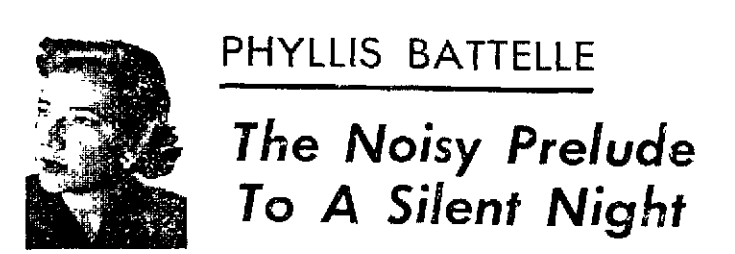

The real losers were the smaller Asian nations that, as a first step in industrial development, had gone in for textiles. It may be merely a coincidence that in certain of these nations, dictatorial powers have been asserted over the economy.

Dent may not be a protectionist with the textile quota drive merely a reflex action of manufacturers — and organized labor — convinced they were being undercut by coolie wages in the Far East. But he will have to prove himself in a post in which foreign trade has an increasing importance.

Born in Kearney, Nebraska, where his father ran a restaurant, Peterson rose from an executive post in a big advertising agency to become chairman of the board of Bell & Howell. It was from this same firm that Senator Charles Percy of Illinois jumped into politics in Chicago.

Percy, outstanding in the liberal-moderate wing of his party, has been talked about as a nonvint in 1976 despite his insistence that no such thought has crossed his mind. Peterson was in a sense Percy's protégé. His dismissal is bound to be interpreted as a cut at the moderates who look with something less than enthusiasm on Spiro Agnew as the inevitable Nixon successor.

The Noisy Prelude To A Silent Night

NEW YORK — Only a few more jostling days till Christmas, and as I nuzzle through the growing crowds, wincing as they jab my joyeux not to mention my solar plexus, I remember the philosophic musings of the great cynic, Jack Carter, who said:

"Christmas is a time when even young girls get tired. So tired looking they could apparently be called shopping bags."

Wow, I wonder to myself, do I go into the stores to buy presents? Why not order by telephone from the glorious ads in the newspapers? So I pick up the newspapers, and what to my wondering eye doth appear but a vision of an 18-K gold Blinca case to carry your better-breath drops (Cartier's, $350), and a number to call for ordering a subscription to the Shit-Of-The-Month Club! 12 Shits, $290; plus six ties, $260.) So it's back to the discount stores.

The economy has picked up this year over last, as I can tell by counting the price tags and bruises. I never shop for more than eight hours at a stretch, as a result of this. I can usually find about three gifts in the average working day, and as a result there are about 63 presents still unlocated. But who's depressed? The malaise, as with most women, is only temporary.

Once into a hot bath and dinner, the pains of the holiday season dramatically disappear (except for the fact women's feet don't recover from Christmas until Independence Day), and the wonders of it all come over me in warm, nostalgic waves. Christmas really is a lovely season — commercialism, despair

Kent State Lesson Lost

Just when it appeared that sanity had returned to the nation's college campuses and to the authorities who have to deal with the isolated outbreaks of campus troubles, two students were shot to death at Southern University in Louisiana.

What happened in the aftermath of the tragedy offered no surprises. The corpses were still warm when the authorities from the parish sheriff's deputies on up to the governor of the state, insisted that law enforcement officials had not initiated the violence, that the first tear gas canisters were thrown by students. They hadn't killed anybody, either, they said. Students on the scene were just as insistent that they were fired upon without provocation.

An official biracial investigation committee headed by the state's attorney general reported Thursday that state policeman who mistook a casual observation from his superior officer as a command bowled the first tear gas canister toward the students and the committee found that a shotgun blast from the area where the sheriff's deputies were standing killed the two young blacks. The committee said the matter should be turned over to the district attorney or possible criminal prosecution.

If the Southern University incident follows the Kent State pattern, there won't be any criminal prosecutions, at least against those responsible for the shooting.

Other steps have been taken, however. Louisiana Gov. Edwards has said that in the light of the incident, authorities "already have embarked on plans to train highly specialized state policemen and National Guardsmen of this type of thing." That was supposed to be the lesson of Kent State over two years ago. But as late as the training program is, it still might prevent other senseless tragedies in the future. Death is too severe a penalty for shouting obscenities or occupying administration buildings.

trepidation the notion of an all-volunteer army, which the U.S. Army is scheduled to be after next July 1 when the current selective service law lapses.

Maj. Gen. John Q. Henric, commanding general of Army recruiting, said this week that the drive to sign up men for an all-volunteer force so far has been successful "beyond expectation," and about 100,000 recruits with no prior service experience have enlisted in the past six months. The goal of such enlistments by July 1 is 190,000.

Our criticism of the all-volunteer concept parallels the criticism of those opposed to the draft, and that is that the cannon fodder will be, even more so now, the disadvantaged, the undereducated, the poor. The volunteer army quite likely will be lacking that cross-section of America that has made it a redoubtable force in the past.

The problem is that any assessment of the strength of the volunteer Army will have to be left to postulating generals, barring, of course, an unwelcome test.

Enlistments Ahead Of Schedule

It's the opinion of President Nixon and doubtless a majority of Americans that to achieve a lasting peace for this nation and the rest of the world the U.S. must negotiate from a position of strength.

People differ, of course, on the definition of strength, how it should be measured, what should constitute it. We don't believe, for example, that the Congress should give the military everything it wants, because it wants too much. We are against inefficiency in defense procurement and senseless waste and duplication. We think that some of the advanced weapons systems foisted on the American taxpayer are the result of an imaginative Pentagon in concert with imaginative weapons manufacturers taking advantage of sleeping purse-string holders. But strength is needed because only the strong can manage peace. It's a sad fact that without strength, nobody listens.

Many people who accept the necessity of a strong defense posture approach with

United States. He has even risked war with the Soviet Union and China by manning the harbor of Haiphong and carrying the air war to Hanoi, and even to the China border in order to demonstrate his support of Thieu and the Saigon regime.

But Thieu's response to all this has been to oppose Nixon's compromise cease-fire agreement with the Vietnamese communists, and even to vilify Kissinger in the Saigon press for carrying out what Saigon knew to be Nixon's diplomatic instructions.

Nixon has gone to great lengths — some of his critics would say almost to ridiculous lengths — to support Thieu, but the South Vietnamese leader has shown little interest in the President's problems, and is now trying to blackmail him into carrying on the war on Saigon's terms.

The last two negotiating sessions here in Paris have made this perfectly clear. The President has been patient ever since he authorized Kissinger late in October to announce that "peace is at hand." But patience by Nixon and Kissinger has not been enough. Thieu has interpreted Washington's patience as weakness, and now the Paris game is up.

Nobody here in Paris pretends any longer that the technicians who have been left behind will be able to arrange a compromise which Kissinger failed to negotiate. So now the higher level than the population as a whole.

Washington has tried to persuade Saigon that while this

Much will depend on the individual, who is the real problem. If he runs to the doctor with every ailment and asks for a shot or pill, few doctors can resist making him happy and making money at the same time.

Nerves can often be calmed down by calcium, which some doctors call the "lullaby pill," because it is so effective in relieving pain and nerves. Calcium is not a drug. The drug era will decline when more of us discover natural solutions such as this to common problems.

LOREN SWANSON

Lincoln, Neb.

Congratulations to Daniel Newton for his work in "Mime," and thanks to Milan Wall for his report on the "Mime" activity at East High School.

I know how Dan feels about "Mime" since Plus X has been working with it for over four years. There's an active group now under the direction of Nan Berghel at Plus X. There are also at least two troops at the university working on this modern form of dramatic art.

The troop I'm in has played at a half dozen schools outside since we developed our group this year and the reception has been fantastic. This new type of entertainment is becoming known by civic clubs and social organizations that are looking for something different.

Dan points out that "mime" is all body and imagination, with no props. I'd like to add to that. Because it's all body, it's very strenuous. We have developed a routine of difficult body exercises to condition us before each performance. It is not easy and it takes time to prepare.

We're glad that East High has joined the "Mime" movement, and we recommend it to others. It's very enjoyable and most gratifying for those who love dramatic art.

Final Decision Is Nixon's

PARIS — The Vietnam peace talks in Paris are still going on, but the point of decision is really back in the White House, where it has been from the start. The question now is whether President Nixon is prepared to make a separate peace with Hanoi and the South Vietnamese communists, and so far he has held back.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger failed to get agreement here on a cease-fire, primarily because he was never authorized to play the President's trump card. He tried to persuade the South Vietnamese that they had more to gain by accepting a cease-fire on Washington's terms than by opposing it, but Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu's representatives here in Paris would not agree.

Kissinger was apparently authorized to imply that the United States would sign a separate cease-fire agreement, however reluctantly, if Thieu didn't go along. He held to the letter and the spirit of his instructions, but he was never able to say that the U.S. government had decided to sign alone by a certain date, so Saigon stalled and blocked the agreement the President was willing to sign.

This raises a fundamental question for Nixon. He has backed Thieu for years. He has deferred him against all the anti-war critics in the United States. He has even risked war with the Soviet Union and China by manning the harbor of Haiphong and carrying the air war to Hanoi, and even to the China border in order to demonstrate his support of Thieu and the Saigon regime.

But Thieu's response to all this has been to oppose Nixon's compromise cease-fire agreement with the Vietnamese communists, and even to vilify Kissinger in the Saigon press for carrying out what Saigon knew to be Nixon's diplomatic instructions.

Nixon has gone to great lengths — some of his critics would say almost to ridiculous lengths — to support Thieu, but the South Vietnamese leader has shown little interest in the President's problems, and is now trying to blackmail him into carrying on the war on Saigon's terms.

The last two negotiating sessions here in Paris have made this perfectly clear. The President has been patient ever since he authorized Kissinger late in October to announce that "peace is at hand." But patience by Nixon and Kissinger has not been enough. Thieu has interpreted Washington's patience as weakness, and now the Paris game is up.

Nobody here in Paris pretends any longer that the technicians who have been left behind will be able to arrange a compromise which Kissinger failed to negotiate. So now the

Meet Star Carrier Marvin Svoboda

Nearly everyone in Bruno knows Marvin Svoboda. Since he took over a paper route 11 months ago, Marvin has found many new friends and won a number of new subscribers for The Lincoln Star.

Known for his excellent service and pleasant personality, Marvin recently surprised some of his customers by building wooden boxes to keep their paper safe and dry.

A student at Bruno public school, Marvin uses his route profits to buy school supplies and saves the rest of it for the future.

In his spare time, Marvin enjoys such outdoor activities as hunting, fishing and swimming.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ladd Svoboda, feel that having a paper route has

On getting to the top...

Take another look at these stairs. You're right, there are no landings!

Risky business climbing stairs without landings. And stupid, too, since they don't go anywhere.

There are people who would sacrifice almost anything to get to the top. They talk excitedly about the ladder of success. But in their eagerness to climb, they often choose a stairway to nowhere.

One day the stone masons and cement-pourers will catch up with the structural-steel men. Then a building will unfold this stairway. It will have meaning and purpose. It will be a stairway to somewhere.

Our churches are busy building spiritual values into the structure of our society. As these spiritual values unfold man's quest for success, the man on his way to the top becomes a dedicated servant of God and the community.

Bethany Park Heights Northeast Heights Fiene Heights

in suburbia

In most suburban homes, plans are being finalized for holiday celebrations that will be taking place in a very short while. But before we relate the details of several of the Christmas activities that will transpire, we'd like to mention some goings on that will keep one suburban family quite busy during the first part of next week.

On Tuesday, Bethany Park Heights residents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Roelle and children, Cynthia and Curtis, will welcome two out-of-town visitors into their home for a brief visit. Arriving from their home in Litchfield will be Mr. Roelle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roelle.

That evening, the Roelle family will have a slightly early Christmas celebration, because on Wednesday the Walter Roelles will board the plane for San Bernardino, Calif., where they will spend two weeks visiting at the home of another son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Roelle and children, Debbie, Brian and DeAnn.

On Wednesday evening, another festive get-together will take place at the Roelle home; and in this instance, the guests at the holiday party will include several foreign students who currently are attending the University of Nebraska.

Taking part in the fun will be Alexander Su-Kay Ng, Albert Chi-Pui Cheung and Gilbert Kung-Lup Leung, all of whom are originally from Hong Kong.

We might also mention the fact that Alexander and Gilbert are especially looking forward to this holiday season because they will be returning to Hong Kong for a month-long between-semester visit with their families.

Making plans to do a bit of traveling during the holidays are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Witt and son, Fred, who make their home in the Fiene Heights neighborhood. The Witts will spend Christmas Day in Ralston at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Witt's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Tad Dunham and sons, David and Ted.

Mrs. Witt tells us that the Dunham family will be in Lincoln on Christmas Eve for a get-together which will take place at the home of Mr. Dunham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Dunham. Also taking part will be Mr. and Mrs. Bill Roper and daughter.

Included among the many Lincoln families who will roll out the red carpet to welcome visitors on Christmas Day will be Northeast Heights residents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kuenning and sons, Troy Scott and Rick Alan.

The Kuenning family's guests will include Mr. Kuenning's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kuenning, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Graves, and children, Lori, Chris and Heidi, who will arrive from their home in Omaha for the day's festivities, which will be highlighted by a Christmas dinner.

Guests will also be very much in evidence on Christmas Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Peters and children, Kerri, Lance and Linda. Enjoying a holiday dinner at the Peters home will be Mrs. Peters' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hamilton; and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hamilton, all of Omaha.

Opening lead—seven of diamonds.
Marty Cohn, of Atlanta, who has a penchant for bidding suits he doesn't have, provides good copy for the newspaper reporter. Here is a hand he played in a pair championship.

East opened the bidding with a club and Cohn, true to form, overcalled with a heart. Eventually, he got to three notrump, a contract that appeared to have no chance whatever of succeeding.

West had no reason to suspect anything fishy and he made the normal lead of a diamond. Cohn won in dummy with the eight and played the A-K and another spade, discarding two diamonds from his hand as East won the spade with the queen.

East elected to return the deuce of clubs, instead of the five, and Cohn proceeded to wrap the contract around East's neck. He finessed the jack and cashed the A-K, producing the following position:

North		East
10 9 7 5		A Q J 4
K 2		Q 10
West		South
7 6		10 9 8
A K 9 6		Q

Cohn had so far lost only a spade trick. When he now led a club, East could do no better than cash two clubs and the ace of hearts before conceding the last three tricks to dummy.

East could have defeated the contract by returning the five of clubs, instead of the deuce, and at the end winding up with the Q-2 of clubs in the diagrammed position instead of the Q-10. In that case, East would have been able to exit with the deuce of clubs to defeat the contract two tricks, but who in the world would want to spoil such a great story?

Christmas Festivity

The spirit of the holiday season will be enhanced at Milder Manor when residents and employees, as well as their friends and relatives, gather there on Monday afternoon, Dec. 18, between the hours of 2:30 and 4 o'clock for the annual Christmas party.

Providing the entertainment for those attending will be Lincoln High School's girls' singing group, "Ennead," which is directed by Miss Doretha Gore.

Girl Scouts Make Toys, Gifts

In order to live up to the reputation that the motto establishes, the girls, affiliated with the H. M. Foster, Jr. Girl Scout Council, constantly are looking for new ways to do something for others.

One particular troop this year chose to express their good deeds in the form of Christmas presents and clothing for some youngsters enrolled in the Headstart Program at Huntington School.

Among the gifts which were presented to the Headstart teacher, Mrs. Kany Jacques, were handmade toys — snowman puppets, dolls and clothes, and number books — as well as favors and even some clothes made by the conscientious Junior Girl Scouts, all fourth, fifth, and sixth graders whose leaders are Mrs. Robert Norup and Mrs. Kerner Jones.

The thoughtful gifts were presented to Miss Jacques on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 14 —

Miss Martin, Bride

Evening Wedding

At a 7 o'clock candlelight ceremony on Friday evening, Dec. 15, the marriage of Miss Barbara Joan Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Richard Grant, to Jerald Roy Morford, son of Mrs. John Ray Morford and the late Mr. Morford, was solemnized at the Redeemer Lutheran Church by the Rev. Melvin Tassler.

The threesome of bridal attendants included Miss Patricia Marie Grant, who was her sister's maid of honor, bridesmaid Mrs. Michael Yearley, and Miss Paula Ann Grant, the bridesmaid.

Larry G. Morford served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included John Kopf, Robert Morford, James R. Grant, Jr., Michael Yearley, and Lynn Green.

For her wedding, the bride appeared in a gown of silk crepe and Arabesque lace in the antique tone. An overlay of the lace fashioned the Empire bodice, and the lace was repeated to accent the wedding band collar to ornament the cuffs of the full Bishop sleeves, and to encircle the waistline, beneath which the skirt was gathered into a graceful A-line silhouette. A portion of the lace held to the head her veil of elbow length, and she carried a colonial bouquet of ivory sweetheart roses, accented with holly sprigs and gypsophila.

The bride was graduated from the University of Nebraska where she majored in secondary education and where she is affiliated with Alpha Xi Delta sorority. Mr. Morford formerly attended the University of Nebraska, and he currently is engaged in private business in Lincoln.

On Friday evening, Dec. 15, the marriage of Miss Claudette Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Livingston, to James Carl Tiedeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Tiedeman, took place at the First Plymouth Congregational Church. The Rev. Thomas Evans solemnized the 7:30 o'clock ceremony.

Mrs. Michael Garrison attended the bride as matron of honor, and the bridal entourage was completed by bridesmaids Miss Denise Smith, Miss Teresa Schlake, Miss Cindy Knickerbocker of Waverly, and Miss Beth Ann Probst of Seward.

Jay Burt served the groom as best man and the groomsmen and ushers included Clinton Schlake, Joe Buterbaugh, Randy Fields and Eugene Fields, both of Tecumseh; David Livingston, Jim Essman, and Pat Murphy.

The bride selected a gown of cotton voile fashioned in the Empire mode for her wedding. The bodice featured a wedding band collar and Bishop sleeves, deeply cuffed by a wide band of Schiffler embroidered lace. The lace was repeated in wide panels which ornamented the A-line skirt which extended into a cotton-length train. Clusters of lace petals, which formed a bandeau, held in place her cotton-length veil, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and pink carnations.

Following a wedding trip to Denver, Colo., Mr. Tiedeman and his bride will reside in Lincoln.

DEAR ABBY: A big dog in our neighborhood took the heads off two pet rabbits which belonged to my children. I telephoned the SPCA and told them to pick up that dog. I really feared for the small children in our neighborhood with such an animal running the streets.

mess this would get me into because while they were searching our neighborhood for that big dog, they picked up a small harmless dog and took him away because he had no tags and was running loose.

No Analogy Seen In Speakers' Fees

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

A University of Nebraska student's attorney said Friday he doesn't view as "analogous" a state's use of tax funds to pay speakers who express political or religious thoughts and the university's similar use of student fee monies.

"The relationship of a taxpayer to an elected official is quite different from the relationship of a student to the University of Nebraska," said attorney Lawrence E. Murphy in closing arguments on a student fee case.

In the case NU student Richard Veed is challenging the constitutionality of university collection and use of certain student fees, which Veed contends have been used to promote political and religious beliefs with which he does not agree.

Murphy contended in his closing arguments that the university's collection of fee monies for financial support of such activities as newspaper publication, speakers' appearances and student government has deprived his client of his freedom of speech, religion and association.

Veed's only recourse, said Murphy, is to "walk away" from the speakers he doesn't care to support, for example.

"This is the core, the key and the jugular vein of the plaintiff's contention," Murphy told U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom.

Fee support of the newspaper amounts to "financial patronage" of a monopolistic newspaper which the university does not control, said Murphy.

Alan E. Peterson, attorney for the NU Board of Regents, however, argued that Veed was not forced to attend the University of Nebraska.

"When Veed chose to come to the university, he joined the group voluntarily," said Peterson. "He submitted to the (jurisdiction) of the Board of Regents who do have the duty to prescribe the education and provide the general government of the university and the power to set fees."

Peterson said a student could not thus argue that his right of association had been violated.

Peterson also argued that Veed has the right of any other student to participate in the process of speaker selection, seek elected office in student government or interview for a position on the newspaper staff.

Murphy's comment on the comparison of tax collection and fee collection came in response to a question from Urbom, who asked if there was any difference between the two situations.

Murphy said yes.

He also said that political or religious speeches financed with monies under regental jurisdiction are not appropriate outside the classroom.

Urbom then asked if it would be a legitimate use of fees if the board designated a speakers series as a university class.

"If they want to set it up as a political science course, fine," said Murphy.

Veed is seeking a permanent injunction against collection of the fees, plus a refund of a portion of the fees he's paid in the last two years.

Urbom denied a request for a preliminary injunction in the case in August.

After hearing the final arguments in the case and testimony from several witnesses, Urbom told reporters that he may not rule on the matter until after the first of the year.

Legal Aid Society Still Very Much In Business

Justice, Inc., a legal aid society, is still very much in business according to its president, Earl B. Barnawell.

In a recent article on the allocation of United Funds for 1973, The Star indicated that the lawyer referral program is no longer in operation, but did not intend to suggest that the entire organization was inactive.

Although the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision extended the right to appointed counsel to persons accused of misdemeanors, in cases where the defendant might be sentenced to jail, reported Barnawell, there is still much concern for poor persons who need attorneys and fail to qualify for appointed counsel under the Supreme Court ruling.

Justice, Inc.'s revised guideline of operations includes the following activities:

—Follow-up of the recently appointed Police Review Board.

—Research on the need for a system whereby a person can pay fines or obtain bail bonds on weekends.

—Establishing the need for a full-time public defender who would be available on weekends.

—Follow through on research to show the need for a minority volunteer probation program in our courts.

Apollo 17 Astronauts Receive Pay Raises

Space Center, Houston (UPI) — President Nixon gave pay raises to the three orbiting Apollo 17 astronauts Friday.

Navy Capt. Eugene Cernan, flight commander, received a $1,259.32 increase, Navy Cmdr. Ron Evans received a $1,123.05 boost and scientist Jack Schmitt got a $1,446.49 hike.

Cernan and Evans both received 6.66% increases under the President's order for raises for all members of the armed services next month. Schmitt received a 5.14% boost under the same order raising the salary of most federal government workers.

Schmitt's raise turned out to be higher because his $28,142 salary was the highest for his crew.

It is traditional that military astronauts get a one rank boost after returning from their first space flight. Civilian Schmitt is not eligible and Cernan has already flown twice and received his promotion.

But by virtue of the White House action, Evans will also become a Navy captain on his return with a base pay of $18,824.

After the federal pay raises and fringe benefits are added Evans and Cernan will each make $26,397 and Schmitt will receive $29,563 a year.

Cherry Installed As President Of Medical Society

Dr. L. Dwight Cherry, a Lincoln surgeon, has been installed as the 1973 president of the Lancaster County Medical Society. He succeeds Dr. Bernard Wendt.

Members also chose Dr. William F. Nye, ophthalmologist, as president-elect. Dr. Dwight Snyder, a family practitioner, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Dr. John F. Porterfield, pathologist, was re-elected to the executive council. Dr. Louis Gogola, neurosurgeon, was elected a new council member. Carryover council members are Dr. Herbert Reese and Dr. D. W. Ebers.

Dr. Wendt will remain on the council for the next year.

Ravenna Man Dies In Crash

Grand Island (UPI) — Nebraska's traffic death toll climbed one notch Friday with the death of a 51-year-old Ravenna man.

Grand Island Police said Alvin L. Sklenar was killed in a one vehicle crash in northwest Grand Island on Nebraska Highway 2.

Police said the milk truck Sklenar was driving turned over and Sklenar was thrown from the vehicle.

The crash raised the 1972 traffic death toll to 455, compared with 459 on Dec. 16, 1972.

Ash Warned Navy He'd Go To White House

(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — Roy L. Ash, at the time president of Litton Industries and a close advisor to President Nixon, last summer warned senior Navy officials that he would carry his firm's $500 million contract dispute over their heads to the White House, according to minutes of a meeting obtained by the Star-News.

Ash, who left as Litton's top executive this month after Nixon named him to head the powerful Office of Management and Budget, denies he purposely gave the impression that he intended to take Litton's case to the White House to try to sway the decision.

"I did not, in fact, exert any such influence," he said.

But high Navy officials who took part in a June 3 meeting over a severely delayed ship construction program clearly thought Ash was cautioning them not to lean too hard on Litton. Ash told them the company was in a serious financial crunch at the time, aggravated by disputes over costs and Navy contracts.

The minutes of the June meeting — an unclassified report by one of the admirals present — were made available by Navy sources troubled by the continuing dispute now that Ash will be a top official in the executive branch.

As it turned out, Litton in late summer was given a six-month reprieve — until February — from enforcement of a contract clause that would have seriously jeopardized payments to Litton and which could have put the 11th-ranking defense contractor in debt to the Navy for uncompleted work already paid for.

The extension was announced by Navy Secretary John W. Warner, who had participated in a series of unpublicized "summit" meetings between Navy officials and Litton representatives.

Ash's comments about going to the White House came at the June meeting. According to the minutes:

"Mr. Ashe (his name is misspelled in the minutes) indicated that it appears that some in the Navy have a built-in sense of self-righteousness concerning Litton's performance and that the Navy would have to relax this view if Litton is expected to proceed with the contract," the report said.

"Mr. Ashe indicated that he intended to meet with Secretaries Sanders (Under Secretary Frank Sanders) and Warner and then on to the White House to explain the problem," continued the admirals' report of the June meeting.

A Litton spokesman said the firm's chief negotiator with the Navy has been Fred W. O'Gree, who succeeded Ash as company president, but Navy sources said Ash did the talking for Litton in the numerous meetings he attended.

And despite objections from some lower-echelon Navy officials who argue that such "summit" meetings can lead to bad decisions, Warner — first as undersecretary and later as secretary — deal personally with Ash and other high company officials over the expensive disagreement.

As of now, the $500 million dispute is at various stages of negotiation and adjudication.

Ash, a confidant of Nixon since he headed a major government reorganization study in 1968, will be in a position as head of the OMB to review and influence the Navy budget, although most decisions on 1974 spending will have been made by the time he takes office.

His appointment at OMB does not require Senate confirmation.

The $500 million dispute goes back at least a year-and-a-half. Trouble came up in construction of a fleet of LHA — landing, helicopter assault ships — being built at Litton's new automated shipyard in Pascagoula, Miss.

Marriage Is On The Rocks For Shapiros

Jerusalem (UPI) — The Soviet Union could not prevent Jewish engineer Gabriel Shapiro from marrying an American wife, but now that they are together in Israel, their marriage has run aground, acquaintances reported Friday.

Israelis close to the couple said Shapiro, a 27-year-old chemistry engineer and his wife, the former Judith Silver of Cincinnati, were now living apart in seclusion. Officials declined to reveal their whereabouts. Acquaintances said the Shapiros had not managed to patch up their differences since they quarreled in public over whether they should settle in the United States or Israel. They arrived in the Jewish state Nov. 3.

Judith married Shapiro in Moscow but was forced to leave four days later when her tourist visa expired. Back home, she launched a vigorous campaign to pressure the Soviet government into letting her husband leave.

Shapiro was drafted into the Soviet Army during President Nixon's visit to Moscow, but refused to join up. He was given a mild labor sentence but was allowed to live at home until Soviet authorities decided to let him emigrate.

"I'm going to Israel," he told newsmen at Vienna, where he and his wife were reunited. "No, he's not. We're going to America," said Mrs. Shapiro in tears.

After a quarrel, Shapiro boarded a plane to Israel and his wife came with him. The quarrel resumed when they got off the plane here.

School Gyms Will Lower Temperature

Lincolns who use Public School gymnasiums for weekend exercises will have to run a little harder to keep warm Saturday.

The school district announced Friday that it is cutting back by four degrees the temperature level in school buildings during the weekend.

That will mean an average temperature of 68 degrees instead of 72.

The school district said the shift to the "minimal" temperature was taken as a step to conserve fuel oil since suppliers have asked for help in conserving oil use.

Robert Don Hartog, assistant superintendent for business affairs, said the suppliers said the pipeline can't keep up with the city's oil consumption.

Some school buildings are used during the weekend for programs under the auspices of the City Recreation Department.

Oil Deposits Worth An Estimated $2 Trillion Lie Along Atlantic Shelf

Washington (UPI) — Oil deposits second in size only to Alaska's in the United States and worth an estimated $2 trillion at current market prices lie untouched along the Atlantic Continental Shelf, the government said Friday in a draft study.

The study, by the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management (BLM), said more than half the oil deposits are in an area between Sandy Hook, N.J., and Cape Hatteras, N.C., and that the unnamed coast also has other valuable minerals that could become gems, iron alloys and radioactive atomic material.

A BLM spokesman called the study "only a library project," a combination of already published information, with a few original investigations.

Years Away

He also said any use of these resources is "at least 5, 10 or 15 years away" because of court suits over jurisdiction on offshore leases, legal procedures such as environmental impact studies, and debate over whether the minable resources are more valuable than the environmental balance of the area.

Oil resources off the coast were estimated last year by geologists J. Spivak and O. B. Shelburne in a study for the American Association of Petroleum Geologists.

Although the BLM study cites the Spivak-Shelburne study for its estimate of oil supply, its compilation of other studies supported their estimate.

But the BLM report said "the arbitrary assumptions that necessarily underlie such estimates make them highly speculative and it should be emphasized that exploratory drilling is required to determine whether any petroleum is present in commercially recoverable quantities."

Primary Purpose

The primary purpose of the study was to determine the land use potential of the mid-Atlantic coast along New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina.

It said there is no offshore mining of oil and gas and the production of crude petroleum in the area "is insignificant."

It estimated the area has 5.5 billion barrels of oil, 37 trillion cubic feet of gas and 1.1 billion barrels of natural gas liquids.

In the mid-Atlantic region alone, the Spivak and Shelburne probe estimated, there are 2.3 billion barrels of oil, 15.4 trillion cubic feet of natural gas and 500 million barrels of natural gas liquids.

Among U.S. oil fields, only Alaska's north slope, which is estimated to have more than 9 billion barrels of oil, contains more oil. The Gulf coast supply has been estimated at somewhat more than 5 billion barrels.

Potential Values

The study added that the value of resources it estimated are only potential values and that "overall, mineral resources in the Atlantic study area do not currently represent a high-value resource use."

"However, there is good potential for the development of some of these minerals such as sand and gravel," the report said. "Sand and gravel have the most potential for development and are the most widely exploited resources from the surface of the continental shelves."

The study said the sand and gravel could be $450 to $500 million a year.

California Will Permit Nebraska Hogs Entry

Nebraska swine will still be shipped to California despite that state's new law barring any swine unless those animals originate from brucellosis-free herds, State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher said Friday.

Kreuscher met with California officials earlier this week and was assured the Jan. 1 cutoff date would not affect shipments from Nebraska.

California officials are satisfied Nebraska has a "workable" control program under way, Kreuscher explained.

Nebraska will be granted an extension for either six months or one year to permit the state to come up with a testing program, Kreuscher said.

Leroy Casados Is Arraigned On 2 Misdemeanor Charges

Chadron (UPI) — Leroy Casados of Alliance was arraigned in Dawes County District Court Friday on misdemeanor charges stemming from the Nov. 15 takeover of the Fort Robinson museum by a group of Indians.

He was charged with interference with or obstruction of a government function, and unlawful assembly. Casados pleaded innocent, as did another defendant, Bob Yellow Bird one week ago. Yellow Bird is from Chadron.

Their attorney, William Staley of Scottsbluff, was permitted to withdraw as counsel because he will be a material witness in the trial.

Charles A. Fisher of Chadron was appointed to represent the defendants.

No trial was set.

Aaron In Line To Snap Marks

RECORDS JEOPARDIZED

San Francisco (AP) — What Atlanta outfielder Hank Aaron does at bat next baseball season could change National League batting records in nearly a dozen categories, official statistics released by the league Friday showed.

Aaron, 37, now is the lifetime major league leader in total bases with 6,172 and runs batted in with 2,037. A year ago those records were held by Stan Musial of St. Louis, who had 6,134 total bases through 1963, and New York Yankee immortal Babe Ruth who batted in 1,967 runs from 1914 to 1935.

The 34 home runs Aaron hit in 1971 raised his lifetime total to 673, and he replaced Willie Mays of the New York Mets, who led the NL a year ago with 616. Aaron needs 41 more to tie the 714 total Ruth compiled.

With career totals of 14 bases-filled home runs, Aaron or Willie McCovey of San Francisco can set a new NL high with another grand slam, but neither is close to Yankee Lou Gehrig's 23.

Aaron's lifetime batting records—improvements on marks he already held—in sacrifice flies, 107; intentional bases on balls, 270; most seasons with 20 or more home runs, 18; most seasons— and consecutive seasons, with 30 or more homers, 18.

Billy Williams of Chicago led the senior league in slugging percentage last season with .606, well ahead of the .558 by Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh. Johnny Bench of Cincinnati ranked third with .541 and Aaron next at .514.

Stargell tied the league record of most consecutive seasons with 100 or more strikeouts, running his string to eight years. Mays replaced Eddie Mathews, Milwaukee (1,452) as lifetime strikeout leader with 1,479.

Lee May of Houston had the most strikeouts last season, 145; and Joe Morgan of Cincinnati the most bases on balls, 115.

Marty Perez of Atlanta grounded into the most double plays last season in the NL, 21; and Rick Monday of Chicago the fewest, four.

Montreal's Ron Hunt was hit most often by a pitcher, 26 times, and his lifetime total mounted to a major league record of 203.

NWU Tests William Penn

Oskaloosa, Ia. — After a disappointing one-win and two-losses showing at last weekend's Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference tournament, Nebraska Wesleyan will try to regain the winning touch when it meets William Penn College here Saturday night.

The Plainsmen squad carried an untarnished record going into the NIAC tournament and extended the streak to four with a first-round victory over Bellevue College. But a 98-57 semi-final loss to tourney winner Hastings and a 90-70 loss to Doane, dropped the Plainsmen's record to 4-2.

Wesleyan head coach Irv Peterson said injuries and fatigue contributed to the two losses in the NIAC tournament.

"We'll just have to get reorganized," Peterson said. "Once we get in conference play we'll do all right."

Saturday's clash with William Penn will matter Wesleyan against a much taller squad. Statesman head coach Taylor Hayes has one of his youngest clubs ever, yet one he calls the "quickest and most aggressive." They have accumulated a 3-3 record this season.

Nebraska's Judicial System Won't Be Same After Jan. 4

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer

Although most Nebraskans will be unaware of the changes, Nebraska's judicial system won't be the same after Jan. 4.

That's the day a massive overhaul of the court system takes effect and James Dunlevy, the state court administrator appointed chiefly to oversee the transition, says he does not anticipate "major confusion."

But "I think we'll see a whole series of minor problems during the first few weeks or months, although eventually, I think everybody concerned will realize that the changes aren't all that drastic."

The overhaul was ordered by the 1972 Legislature when LB1032 was passed and signed into law by Gov. J. James Exon.

Most affected are the county courts. Rather than one county court for each of the state's 93 counties, the state is now divided into 21 county judge districts, served by 43 county district judges, all of whom must be qualified attorneys.

Associate Judges
Those district judges will be aided by associate county judges, all of whom are appointed. Each county will have at least one associate judge, and in about 75 counties, the associate judges will also be the court clerks.

In addition, police magistrate and justice of the peace courts were done away with, those duties being taken over by the county district courts.

The 42 district county judges were elected in the November balloting and all but two of the 102 associate county judges have been appointed.

Medical Society's Leonard Peterson Plans To Retire

Leonard L. Peterson, executive secretary of the Lancaster County Medical Society since 1963, will retire at the end of the year.

According to a society spokesman, Peterson's position will be filled by Prosper D. Duensing, who has been associated with the University of Nebraska Extension Division.

Peterson, who served with the American Red Cross unit at the old Lincoln Air Force Base, retired as administrative director of the Lincoln Community Blood Bank last June.

He has also worked with the central health fair, Explorer Scout medical emphasis program, Lincoln Medical Education Foundation and Lincoln Association of Medical Assistants.

City's Flood Plain Program Defended By Schwartzkopf

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf defended the city's flood plain program Friday in response to criticism leveled Thursday by an official of the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission.

The mayor noted that city officials and commission members have had conflicting views on flood control programs for some time, adding that a series of meetings between the two agencies apparently has failed to resolve those differences.

"This has apparently led to a public blast" by a commission member, Mayor Schwartzkopf said.

The mayor's response followed a report given Thursday by Al Mathews, the commission's flood plain administrator, who questioned failure by city officials to consult with him before a house was built at Capitol Beach Lake.

Mathews said the house, at 741 Lakeshore Dr., violates minimum state flood plain control regulations and, conceivably, could have to be moved.

Mix-Up
Through some mix-up, Mathews told the commission Thursday that the city issued a valid building permit for the house, without first checking with the commission.

He noted that the commission "has a sort of oral agreement" with the City Building Inspections Division whereby the division will "notify us" of such cases.

City officials agreed that there has been cooperation with the commission, pointing out that if possible, builders are advised that a lot is located in a flood plain area.

Part of the problem, Mathews contended, is that the city has not adopted flood plain zoning regulations to control construction in those areas.

However, City-Country Planning Director Doug Brogden noted the city has adopted a resolution prohibiting the extension of utilities (such as water, sewer and paving) into flood plains.

In addition, Brogden said this philosophy has been incorporated into the land subdivision ordinance which regulates construction in such areas.

In a statement issued Friday, Mayor Schwartzkopf stated, "The city has acquired thousands of acres of land (many in flood plain areas) for open space, partially for this purpose."

Participated Actively
The city has cooperated with the federal and county governments and has participated actively in flood control projects and has imposed for reaching land use regulations," he said.

However, the mayor pointed out that the city has the added responsibility of meeting other human needs and that city officials try to achieve a balance.

He added, "The city resisted the delegation of limited special duties to special units of government not responsive to the voters, particularly when these special units do not have the responsibility of recognizing all urban needs."

The mayor stated that the city has had authority by state law and its home rule charter to "enact and enforce land use regulations for the purpose of securing safety from fire, flood and other dangers and to promote the public health, safety and general welfare."

Lawsuit Filed Against Spencer Foods, Union

Columbus, Mo. — Sources here say a suit has been filed in U.S. District Court in Omaha by a Columbus man seeking nearly $1.5 million in damages from the Spencer Foods Co. plant at Schuyler and the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America AFL-CIO and Local 106 of the union in Schuyler.

The suit, filed by 34-year-old Robert Carstensen, stems from a strike in May of 1971 at which time it said Carstensen was working at Spencer Foods and was also a member of the union.

The suit said the "plaintiff and other strikers were urged, by union officers, to commit acts of property damage in support of the strike."

Carstensen resigned as a member of the union on May 4, 1971, crossed picket lines and went back to work, the suit said. The strike ended

Sept. 7, 1971.

The suit said Carstensen was "constantly harassed" both on and off the job. He was "threatened with death or injury," the suit said.

Because of harassment, Carstensen was "forced to spray water" on other workers and was dismissed from Spencer, the suit said.

Carstensen contends in the suit Spencer was obligated to protect him from the alleged harassment. He also contends the union is obligated to protect him and represent him even though he is not a member.

Thesuit seeks $1 million in damages for "ulcers, indigestion and depression," which the suit says are all permanent in nature.

He also seeks $465,000 from Spencer and the union as a loss of wages over the next 31 years.

N.Y. Police Report More Heroin Gone

New York (AP)—The police department reported Friday that another 27 pounds of heroin with a street value of $4 million, seized during the 1962 "French Connection" case, is missing.

This brings to 80 pounds — about $16 million worth — of heroin which police during the past two days have disclosed disappeared from custody.

Narcotics officials estimated the 80 pounds would supply about 7,000 addicts for 100 days.

Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy told newsmen, "I regret that our problem is larger than what we described yesterday. Our investigation will be as deep and as wide as necessary."

Among those to be questioned, police said, was former detective Eddie Egan, whose adventures in the case formed the basis for the book, later made into a movie, "The French Connection."

Egan shocked
At a separate news conference, Egan said he was "shocked" by the disappearance. "We worked day and night on that case... I'm very incensed about it."

He said he would cooperate fully with any city, state or federal investigators.

"I believe the underworld got to somebody," he said, adding that, at this point, he did not believe a policeman was involved.

Egan, who is co-starring in another movie, "Badge 373," said he "never, never" saw the heroin after it was seized in a Bronx apartment in 1962 and later produced in evidence at a 1963 trial.

"Some member of the underworld in 1968 made an endeavor through a law enforcement officer to find out the voucher number of the property seized in the 'French Connection,'" he said.

Another name entered the case Friday.

Joseph Nunziatta, Deputy Police Commissioner Richard Kellerman said the name signed to a receipt in the property's clerk's office when a detective removed the narcotics on Sept. 29, 1969, was that of Joseph Nunziatta.

Nunziatta, 39, a 15-year-veteran on the force, committed suicide by shooting himself with his service revolver while sitting in a parked, unmarked patrol car in Brooklyn last March 27.

Kellerman said it was not known at this time whether the detective's signature was a forgery.

Another Batch
Although the second batch of heroin reported missing was part of another heroin seizure based on a Brooklyn investigation of the "French Connection" case, according to police, it was not part of the 73 pounds described Thursday. Murphy said 57 of the 73 pounds had been stolen.

A brief memorandum to the press, released at police headquarters, said 24 pounds of heroin "was removed from the property clerk's custody and returned under the same signature as the previously reported removal."

It said an analysis of the "material involved in this seizure, disclosed the 23 pounds of these narcotics was also missing."

The memo gave chronology of movement in and out of the department of the Brooklyn-seized heroin.

Legal Action Possible

Scottsbluff (UPI) — Nebraska Public Power District board member Hank Kosman said Thursday night if NPPD and the city of Scottsbluff remained at a stalemate on a proposed profit plan after Jan. 1, NPPD would have to bring court action against the city.

NPPD has been negotiating with the city for about a year to raise its share of power revenues from 69% to 73% while the city's take would drop from 31% to 27%.

Kosman's comments came during the Scottsbluff city council meeting as the council declined to accept the proposal. However, the councilmen said the only point of difference now is the date on which the new rate would become effective. The city wants it retroactive to Dec. 2, while NPPD prefers March 1.

The dollar difference between the two dates totals $202,000.

Kosman, of Scottsbluff, said he would express the city's proposal with the board on its Dec. 20 meeting, and another negotiating session with the council will be held after that.

Life Term Given Bus Hijacker

Everett, Wash. (UPI) — Cecil Hernandez, 21, of Seattle, convicted of first degree kidnapping and robbery in connection with the hijacking of a Greyhound bus Oct. 6, was sentenced to life imprisonment Friday.

The life sentence was handed down by Judge Paul Hansen of Snohomish County Superior Court who also gave him 20 years for robbery and ordered the sentences to run concurrently.

Because the jury also found Hernandez was armed at the time of the hijacking, Hansen said it was mandatory that he serve at least five years imprisonment on the robbery charges. The life conviction requires a 20-year minimum sentence.

Two other men were scheduled to go on trial next month on charges of participating in the hijacking.

Gunsman commandeered the bus while it was enroute from Seattle to Vancouver, B.C. and forced the driver to turn onto an access road about 20 miles north of Everett. There they were met by companions in an automobile which they used to make their getaway after robbing the bus passengers. The robbers also tried to disable the bus by shooting out its rear tires.

Four suspects, including a runaway girl from Seattle, were arrested in Portland, Ore., the next day when a young woman tried to use a credit card stolen from one of the bus passengers. A fifth suspect was arrested later in Seattle.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more subtract 4. If the number is less than 6 add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
